The master of metaphors and killer punchlines returns with the follow up to 2001's "I Told You So". On Poison Pen Chino XL enlists the hottest talents from a few of hip-hop's most resound crews, with appearances from Wu-Tang affiliate Killa Priest, Psycho Les of The Beatnuts and Proof of D-12.

Member of Art of Origin who were influenced by both rap and heavy metal and became the first to blend the two into a genre later dubbed "Horrorcore" in the mid-90s, with the appearance of the Gravediggaz and the Flatlinerz.

Chino's 1996 solo major label debut album "Here To Save You All", is recognized by all who have heard it, as one of the most underrated underground hip-hop albums ever made. With underground hip-hop gaining recognition as an intellectual movement, hopefully the advanced lyrical prose on Poison Pen will garner Chino XL the respect he has always deserved.

Known throughout the years for blazing mics on The Wake Up Show and freestyles across the country, Chino has kept a consistent fan base due to his punchline heavy style that has influenced many MC's, most notably Eminem.
